

Net Zero for Churt

Churt News in Nature May 2021

Published by Churt Environment Working Group
www.churtzero.org

May 2nd was International Dawn Chorus Day

Turn up the sound and press the play button to hear how the Churt birds welcomed the day

A pair of Great Crested Grebes Spotted on the Moat at Thursday
Nature Reserve

Cascades of catkins were much in evidence through April

It's No Mow May

Leave the mower in the garage for the month of May. Let the flowers bloom on your lawn and verges to provide a vital source of nectar for bees and other insects

Colin the Cuckoo

A lot more recovery is still needed at Thursley NNR but it was good to hear a cuckoo back. Hope it was local cuckoo Colin.

Swallows are busy nesting in outbuildings
all around the village

Pink Supermoon

Did you see it on 27th April? It gets its name from the colour of phlox flowers that bloom in Spring. A 'supermoon' is when the moon is large in the sky because of its proximity

Fascinating fungi

But what is that small plastic bag doing hiding underneath?!

Scots Pine
nursery
on Frensham
Common. It doesn't take them long to come back!

Bluebells are popping out everywhere
all around Churt

Please send your nature observations and photos to churtenvironment@gmail.com to publish in future editions.